Sri Lanka Launches 'Life' Project

Biodiversity Sri Lanka (BSL), in partnership with the Forest Department of Sri Lanka, the IUCN Sri Lanka Country Office and selected private sector partners, launched its multi-sectoral, multi-partner collaborative project 'Life' on 7 February 2018 at the MJF Centre for Dignified and Sustainable Empowerment in Katubedda. Participants included representatives of top corporates, conservationists, undergraduate students from the Universities of Colombo, Moratuwa and Sri Jayewardenepura, and the media.

The project was initiated to establish a biodiversity baseline, and to restore a 10-ha block of degraded forest, within the Kanneliya Conservation Forest, through scientific principles of ecological restoration. The launch event consisted of four segments: the first was a guided tour for the university students around the One Earth Urban Arboretum established by Dilmah Conservation in the premises of the MJF Centre. The second segment of the event began with an introductory presentation to the project by Prof. Devaka Weerakoon and Advisor to BSL, Ms. Shiranee Yasaratne. Addressing the gathering, Conservator General of Forests, Mr. Anura Sathurusinghe, called the initiative "new and unique" for both Sri Lanka and the Forest Department. The official project MoU signing between BSL and eight project partner companies took place next in the Butterfly Garden of the MJF Centre. The event was brought to a close with a demonstration of sustainable cuisine by world-renowned celebrity chef Peter Kuruvita.

This multi-sectoral, multi partner project signifies a fundamental change in the sustainability landscape of Sri Lanka; it suggests that multi-entity cooperation is the way forward to tackle multiple environmental challenges faced by the country.

The partnership aims to strengthen business and biodiversity efforts in the ASEAN region, as well as to enhance public awareness of the value of biodiversity and the need to conserve it. In addition, reinforcing global climate change efforts is included amongst their goals.

According to Atty. Roberto V. Oliva, former ACB Executive Director, the joint initiative will serve as a platform to generate awareness on the intricate link among biological resources, the economic well-being of industries, and the people who depend on these businesses for their livelihood.

Indian Business, Biodiversity and Climate Change Conference

Biodiversity loss and climate change are critical to sustainable business operations. To tackle these aspects businesses are trying to evolve their operations through valuation of natural capital, circular economy, resource efficiency and are making a move from geological energy sources to renewable energy sources. This conference is designed to encourage discussion and exchange of ideas on how to leverage existing technology, innovation and available tools from various platforms with cross-sector collaboration involving businesses, government, NGOs and academia in sustainable management of businesses. This could be achieved through managing our natural capital. The conference will provide a forum to showcasing best practices in businesses and bring out the positive effects of mainstreaming biodiversity conservation in achieving sustainable development. International Day for Biodiversity - 22 May 2018

Almost twenty-five years have passed since the world gathered in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, for the Earth Summit, and adopted the ground-breaking agreement to protect all life on Earth - the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD). On June 5th 1992, the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD) was adopted and opened for signature. On December 29th 1993, the Convention entered into force. In 2018, the Convention on Biological Diversity will celebrate 25 years since its entry into force.

It is a chance to communicate the importance of biodiversity, and to urge strengthened efforts to achieve the Strategic Plan for Biodiversity 2011-2020.

We are at an important crossroads, at a time when global loss of biodiversity and healthy ecosystems continues at an unacceptably alarming rate. Thus, even as we celebrate this milestone, the 25th anniversary provides an opportunity to sound an alarm around the world, and highlight the importance of biodiversity - which provides food, fibre, jobs, climate mitigation and resilience, health and well-being - for people and the planet. The anniversary provides an excellent platform for Parties to show how they have implemented the Convention. Parties are submitting case studies of their achievements and successes under the Convention, for inclusion in a variety of information products for the year.

Parties to the Convention are organizing and hosting local celebrations on 22 May 2018, the International Day for Biodiversity. These celebrations are an opportunity for each country to highlight their achievements and report on the progress made thus far towards the implementation of the Convention.
